

	Was I attracted to him before he started pursuing me?
	Honestly, do I find him attractive?
	Is he gainfully employed?
	Does he have a place of his own?
	Can he have a good time without being dependent on drugs or alcohol?
	Does he spend most of his non-work time on one activity?
	Have I been to his apartment?
	Is his apartment reasonably nice/clean/comfortable?
	Does he have friends of both genders?
	Have I met his friends?
	Is this relationship in any way secret?
	Is there something that makes the long-term viability of this relationship impossible?
	Do I feel like I shouldn't spend time with friends or family?
	Do I feel like I shouldn't spend time on hobbies or pursuits that don't involve him?
	Does he describe any of his exes as 'crazy'?
	Do we go places and do varied activities together?
	Can he cook, clean, do other things to take care of himself?
	Does he pay for a fair share of our activities?
	When I'm upset, does he listen, rather than trying to change the subject?
	Does he respect my boundaries?
	Is he interested in my ideas and what I do?
	Do we have conversations that I enjoy?
	Do I win debates/arguments a reasonable amount of the time?
	Is he helpful?
	Does he respect my time and schedule?
	Does he support me in my career, ambitions, and goals, even when they don't match or complement his?						